

4 Benefits of Migrating Your Agency to the Cloud

Considering a move to the cloud, but afraid it will be too complex and time consuming? The good news is you can rest assured that proven, expert resources are readily available to support a seamless cloud transition.

The COVID-19 pandemic drove many public sector agencies to the cloud, but now you have the opportunity to mature and increase your cloud investments¹. Below are four benefits of transitioning your organization to the cloud:

1. Reduced Costs

Decrease IT costs by moving infrastructure and applications to the cloud and free up resources to focus on your agency's mission and serving your constituents. A 2019 report from the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO) found that 13 of 16 surveyed federal agencies saved $291 million by moving to cloud services².

2. Boost Staff Productivity

Enable employees to shift from tactical to strategic work and scale their efforts by reducing the time spent on system administration tasks. Customers who migrate to the cloud will be able to run their IT infrastructure management 62 percent more efficiently³.

3. Improve Operational Resilience

Government leaders have launched programs and provided guidance to help agencies securely deploy and employ the cloud to fulfill their missions, including FedRAMP and the Secure Cloud Business Applications (SCuBA) project. With this, the federal government is providing agencies and private sector organizations with tools and insights to strengthen their service availability and reliability, including the ability to respond to rapidly changing levels of demand.

4. Increase Business Agility

Accelerate innovation at global scale by retiring your technical debt and reducing deployment timelines to complete projects faster.
